Chapter 1 by Saul Berumen

In the beginning, there was a dangerous villian destroying towns,cities,maybe even destroying states in America, and let's just say he isn not from the US, maybe not in our planet or galaxy. When the villian first came here to America, the villian went to New York. The first thing he saw was a man cutting the grass on his lawn with his lawnmower so he thought if would be better if he didn't see him doing that so he thought of electricity and destroyed the man and his lawn. After that, he was hungry and so he went to go to get a hot dog. Then when he realised he got a hot dog, he was actually at a baseball game. When he was there, he saw a baseball player make a homerun he got a chance to get the baseball because he was in the front row. When he caught the baseball, people were so happy for him that he got really mad,but all he wants is to gear people feel pain, so he used his electricity powers on innocent people at the game. After he got that over with, he went to go destroy more stuff in New York. When people were running in fear, the villian founded a bakery that which he had saw something that looked liked electricity but wasn't. The villian found something that could lead him to what he was looking for or maybe it was not. After a long day destroying the city, the villian went to go get some rest by going to the Plaza Hotel and just have some time alone. When he got to his room, it had some special room service by looking at the gingerbreadman right next to him. When he was napping on his mattress, he just realized he wanted to take it another level by destroying the Queen of New York. Then when he finally found the Queen, the villian tries to take her down but then he saw one of the forces playing on a computer. So he went to go take it and the villian got shocked by it and he was changed OR maybe he wasn't.
